He Hated All Women So...

HE TIED NUDE GIRL TO BED

—AND TORTURED HER FOR THREE DAYS

Police Say:

COLLEGE BOY READS PLAY ABOUT DEATH—THEN KILLS MOM, DAD AND SISTER

By Michael Salento

College student Harrison Crouse was spending Christmas vacation with his family in Wilmette, Ill.

The 18-year-old boy spent part of one day reading a play about death.

SUDDENLY HE PUT THE BOOK DOWN — AND ALLEGEDLY SHOT HIS FATHER, MOTHER AND SISTER.

It happened last January 2. Crouse reportedly first shot and killed his 16-year-old sister Sally — as she sat at her desk writing a letter.

When the authorities later found her corpse — with a bullet wound in the back of her head — she was still holding her pen.

Crouse's mother then evidently ran out of the kitchen, where she'd been cooking dinner.

As police surmise, Crouse shot at her — but missed, and she ducked into a bedroom.

Crouse's father — who'd been taking down the Christmas tree then started up the stairs.

And his son reportedly fired a bullet into his jaw.

When Crouse's mother opened the bedroom door to see what had happened, Crouse allegedly aimed the .22 caliber rifle once more — and shot her between the eyes.

The police say Crouse's trousers were now covered with blood — probably his mother's since she was shot at close range. — So he changed them.

Then he climbed out the bedroom window and shouted:

"Call the police — my mother has gone berserk."

The police were immediately notified, and when they arrived Crouse told them that his mother had tried to kill him — after shooting his sister and father.

But the police soon found Crouse's bloody trousers and other evidence that made them suspicious of him.

And after several hours of questioning in the home of a neighbor, Officer John Parker said to the boy:

"You have something else to tell us, haven't you?"

"You did kill your mother, your father, and your sister, didn't you?"

And Crouse allegedly then confessed.

When asked why he'd committed the crimes, Crouse reportedly said, "I don't know."

In trying to find a motive for the killings, the authorities are questioning a number of Crouse's associates.

His college counselor, Robert Metzler, commented:

"I saw him several times a week, and he seemed like a perfectly normal, quiet, studious boy."

"He was extremely well-read and seemed to be well-educated."

"I'm no psychiatrist, but something must have snapped in the boy's mind."

"I never knew him to be subject to temper tantrums and he was not given to passion."

One neighbor — who refused to be identified — mentioned that she didn't think Crouse got along too well with his mother.

"There was a feeling of discontent between the two," she said.

"He seemed to get everything he ever wanted, but you almost get the idea his mother was trying to buy his affection."

Crouse is presently in jail awaiting trial.

CROUSE HOME was the scene of a bloody triple slaying.

MOM AND DAUGHTER TERRORIZED—BY THEIR PET PUSSYCAT

By Stanley Glass

Mrs. Vern Carson and her daughter, Gloria, were reading quietly in the living room of their home.

Their pet cat, Boots, was sleeping nearby.

Suddenly the phone rang and . . .

THE CAT LEAPED AT THE TWO WOMEN, CLAWING AND BITING—HOLDING THEM AT BAY.

The cat had had a similar outburst a few weeks before. Both women received ribbed shots after they were scratched and bitten.

Then came the second attack.

Last November 9, Mrs. Carson, 72, started to answer the phone but accidentally fell. Gloria, 46, picked up the receiver and at the same time helped her mother up.

The cat struck again.

Mrs. Carson was clashed on the hand and her daughter on the foot.

Boots slowly backed away from the terrified women.

Hissing, the big calico cat never took his eyes from them. They were afraid to move.

Gloria carefully dialed the veterinarian's number.

He told her he could do nothing.

Then she called her doctor, who told her to call Baltimore police.

Within minutes, six policemen arrived and captured the snarling cat with a noose at the end of a stick.

Again, both women were treated for bite and claw wounds.

HARRISON CROUSE allegedly admitted killing his parents and sister.

Sexy Evi Marandi Believes... "IT'S EASY TO KEEP A MAN— IF YOU HAVE ENOUGH 'BED APPEAL'"

"It always makes me sad to see a woman lose her husband or her lover," said Evi Marandi.

"It's so unnecessary."
"AFTER ALL, IT'S REALLY EASY TO KEEP A MAN — IF YOU HAVE ENOUGH 'BED APPEAL'."

The Greek-born movie actress is presently at work on her 18th picture.

We visited Evi recently at her waterfront apartment in Rome, Italy, where her latest movie is being filmed.

And after pouring us some wine, the luscious star—whose measurements are 37-33-38—gave us her views on love and marriage.

"A woman who is sexually exerting — no matter how moody and difficult she may be — rarely loses her lover," Evi said.

"But most wives forget how to seduce a man once they're married—and that's when it's most important."

"I can't understand what makes so many married women turn into such dull crows."

"Every woman is, after all, a natural temptress . . ."

"And it's not just beauty that does it — it's constant sexual awareness."

"Everyone knows that the most beautiful women in the world are often deadly dull."

"It's boredom in the bedroom that usually makes husbands run."

"But a smart wife never allows this to happen — because as soon as she senses a man is losing interest, she becomes a vamp again."

"This is sometimes accomplished by creating a new image of herself.

"It doesn't take much
 "A trip to the beauty parlor, or a new nightie is often enough."

"One of the most contented husbands I know has a wife who owns a huge wardrobe of negligees."

"She offers him a different sexy costume each night of the week. He gets the feeling that he is making love to a different woman every night."

"She's learned how much

EVI MARANDI thinks moody women can make good wives.

fun it can be to keep a man—feeling like a man."

HE'S VERY TIRED BECAUSE—HE HASN'T SLEPT FOR 8 YEARS

By Lynn Davis

Ozcan Sahin, a 27-year-old clerk, has bags under his eyes.

And he looks ready to collapse onto the nearest bed.

HE'S VERY TIRED — BECAUSE HE HASN'T SLEPT FOR EIGHT YEARS

Sahin was involved in an automobile accident, and he suffered a severe skull injury.

And although his wound healed rapidly enough, he was no longer able to sleep. In desperation, Sahin tried sleeping pills, but they didn't work.

Last year he got married.

Now while his wife sleeps, Sahin paces the floor, reads or draws pictures.

Finally—after eight years—Sahin yawned one day last fall. Beaming with joy, he threw a party for his friends and doctors—certain that his insomnia was about to end.

But he was wrong, because the yawn was never followed by sleep.

Last November 24, Sahin heard about a "sleeping machine" that was invented in France.

His greatest wish is to buy one—even though he's not sure it will work.

But the exhausted clerk only earns $10 a week, and can't afford the expensive machine.

Sahin works at West Turkey's Bergama State Hospital. And despite his strange malady, he hasn't missed a day of work.

"Doctors here tell me that I may fall asleep any day—just like that," he said.

"Of course, they don't know when that could be."

"One doctor said it might be tomorrow—or 50 years from now."

"Fifty years!"
 "I'd be asleep by then, all right—forever."

OZCAN SAHIN is probably the sleepiest man in the world.

KNIFE KILLER TRAPPED—BY A TORN $100 BILL

JOE PAYNE was trapped by a torn bill.

By Jack Halter

It was one o'clock in the morning, and Joe Payne, 33, loitered in front of a Western Union office.

When Korean student Kuk Roe and his wife, Kum, walked by, Payne assaulted and robbed them.

HE STABBED ROE TO DEATH—BUT WAS LATER CAUGHT BECAUSE OF A TORN $100 BILL.

Mrs. Roe was able to hold on to part of the bill Payne tore from her hands.

And she gave it to the Las Vegas, Nevada, police when they arrived on the scene.

Her 24-year-old husband—who'd been knifed three times—was rushed to the hospital. But his wounds proved fatal.

With little to go on, the police began investigating. And after following a lead, they picked up Payne.

They found the missing piece of Mrs. Roe's $100 bill in his possession and charged him with murder.

Last November 5, Payne was found guilty and was sentenced to life imprisonment—with no possibility of parole.

KUK ROE, Korean foreign exchange student, was stabbed three times.

"ROBIN HOOD" CAN'T SLEEP AFTER THEFT —SO HE SURRENDERS TO POLICE

Ralph Wright, 18, told the authorities that he met a penniless woman with two hungry children.

Wright reportedly said that he wanted to help them—so he stole $40 and gave it to the unfortunate family for food.

THEN HE GAVE HIMSELF UP—BECAUSE HIS CONSCIENCE BOTHERED HIM.

Last December 1, Wright allegedly broke into a night club "I kept 20 cents for myself to buy a couple cups of coffee," he told the police later.

"I gave the rest to the poor woman with the two hungry kids."

He said she cried when she thanked him.

But Wright couldn't sleep for the next couple of nights. About midnight last December 3, he turned up at the Kansas City, Kansas, police station and confessed.

After the police heard Wright's story, one of them said:

"You're a Robin Hood, huh?"

Wright looked puzzled, and the officer explained:

"He was the fellow who robbed the rich and gave to the poor."

Wright nodded and replied: "I guess he couldn't take it either when a couple of poor little kids were crying because they didn't have anything to eat."

The police asked Wright how they could get in touch with the woman he'd helped.

And he said that he didn't know.

Wright was charged with vagrancy and investigation of burglary.

G. JOE GOES WILD IN A TOWN WITHOUT COPS

By Robert Streicher

American soldiers are tearing a German town to pieces—stealing and destroying property, and endangering human life.

But the residents can't do a thing about it.

BECAUSE THERE ARE NO AMERICAN MILITARY PATROLS—AND NO LOCAL GERMAN POLICE.

Since the U.S. Army first stationed 1,500 troops at a nearby camp, crime and violence has been a way of life for GIs in Wildflecken, Germany.

Weekends, when many soldiers are on pass have been the worst.

On the weekend of last November 1, Wildflecken absorbed a wave of violence that by comparison makes frontier Wild West towns look mild.

As reported in the American Overseas Weekly:

It began Saturday morning, when an undisciplined American GI beat up a German soldier—with brass knuckles.

That same day another GI, mounted by a B-girl, hit the woman over the head with a rock, and then wrecked the mirrors, tables, chairs, and bottles in the Atlantic Bar.

Less than an hour later, three drunken GIs stole a $50 taxi from the Wildflecken Bank.

Early Sunday morning, a non-commissioned officer stabbed his ex-girlfriend in the abdomen, critically wounding her, in the Femina Bar.

Another GI released the brakes of a parked German car and sent it rolling down a hill, destroying it.

Another German soldier was beaten up—by a Yank wielding a rock.

That evening, while the Femina Bar was in full swing, unidentified GIs hurled two smoke grenades through the bar's plate glass windows.

IN ALL CASES, THE POLICE ARRIVED TOO LATE TO PREVENT VIOLENCE—THEY HAD TO COME FROM A VILLAGE 10 MILES AWAY.

"There are no police of any kind in this town—and the soldiers know it," Mayor Helmut Patzke said.

"The German government tells us they can't afford a police force in such a small town."

"And the American army gives us a run-around."

After a meeting with Mayor Patzke and other Wildflecken citizens, the U.S. Army began using MP patrols in the little village.

"I don't like cops breathing down my neck," said one GI who asked to remain nameless.

"But I admit we need some law around here."

The GI's reputation is at stake.

HE HATES ALL WOMEN—SO HE TIED NUDE GIRL TO BED AND TORTURED HER FOR THREE DAYS

By Ernest Beckman

Alfred Poettinger hated women.

One day he took a girl to his home where . . .

HE STRIPPED HER — THEN TORTURED HER REPEATEDLY FOR THREE DAYS.

"I've hated women — all women — for 19 years," Poettinger later told police.

"In 1946 my wife killed our three children. Then she hung herself.

"I've never gotten over it. I never will.

"I'll never forgive her. I'll always hate women."

Last January 2, Poettinger, 44, went to a bar in Staud-Peters, Austria.

He met Monica Kneoder, a pretty, 21-year-old waitress, and invited her home with him.

She accepted.

The minute they stepped inside, he allegedly ripped off her clothes, gagged her and tied her naked to the bed.

Police said the bedroom was filled with torture tools and Poettinger apparently used them all.

He lashed her with whips and beat her with chains.

He pulled her fingernails with a pair of pliers.

He scarred her body with red-hot objects.

He ground out cigarettes on her breasts.

Unable to endure the pain, Monica passed out. Poettinger revived her by throwing ice water in her face.

Again and again she fainted and each time Poettinger drenched her in ice water.

The torture allegedly continued for three days and three nights.

"During it all he kept saying, 'You're no different from the rest. I hate you,'" Monica later sobbed to police.

Finally, Poettinger fell into an exhausted sleep and Monica managed to slip out of the ropes that bound her to the bed.

Naked and in a state of shock, she crawled from the house to the home of a neighbor.

"Help me, help me. He's a madman. He'll kill me," she gasped before collapsing in the neighbor's arms.

Police were called and Poettinger was arrested.

"I'm not sorry," he told them. "She deserved it. She's despicable — just like all the rest."

He is now awaiting trial.

WILD INDIAN GOES ON "WARPATH"

— STEALS TRUCK, GUNS AND MONEY — THEN SHOTS HIMSELF

By Tom Crowell

Edgar Johnson, a 45-year-old Indian, was charged with murdering his pregnant wife.

The Indian was found insane, and sent to a mental institution.

But he escaped — and went on the "warpath." HE STOLE A TRUCK, TWO GUNS AND $5,100 — THEN WHEN A POSSE CLOSED IN, HE SHOT HIMSELF.

Last November 20, the escaped mental patient reportedly walked into a Seminole, Okla., pawn shop.

He pointed a sawed-off .32 caliber rifle at the owner's wife — and handed her a note, which said:

"I'm in deep trouble and need two guns."

The note was signed, "The Seminole Kid."

Before the Indian left, he fired over the woman's head. The next day Johnson entered the Citizens State Bank of Maud, Okla.

He was carrying a large paper sack.

The Indian walked over to one of the tellers and handed him a note which said:

"This is hold up. All the bills you got."

"Be quiet. You won't get hurt."

"I have two guns on me. One in paper sack."

The teller did as he was told. After Johnson had filled his sack with money, he left the bank and ran to the stolen truck.

He drove about six miles to a town called Bowlegs, Okla., and abandoned the truck.

Then he made his way to his sister's home in Wildcat Hollow.

Meanwhile, the bank had notified the authorities.

Road blocks were set up, and the highway police arranged to have an airplane patrol the area.

The stolen truck was spotted — and the manhunt quickly spread to Wildcat Hollow.

Johnson was standing at the edge of a pond when he saw the posse of 30 men approaching.

The Indian didn't wait to hear what they had to say.

He raised a gun to his head — and fired.

Police Chief John Sowers said:

"I knew this thing was going to end in a shooting, one way or the other."

Johnson was rushed to a hospital, where he remained in critical condition for several days.

Last December 7 — after three hours of surgery — the Indian died.

The authorities searched the area near the house of Johnson's sister, and found most of what they believed to be the stolen money in an old car body.

They also found a few hundred dollars in the lining of the Indian's coat.

The two stolen pistols were pulled out of the pond.

EDGAR JOHNSON didn't wait to hear what the posse had to say. He raised a gun to his own head — and fired.

DRUGGED GIRL WAKES UP NAKED — IN BED WITH A STRANGE MAN

From HERB COLE Paris

Yvonne Boults opened her eyes and found herself in a bed with a strange man.

Both were completely naked.

BUT YVONNE DIDN'T KNOW HOW SHE GOT THERE — OR WHY SHE WAS UNABLE TO MOVE OR SPEAK.

The last thing the 23-year-old schoolteacher remembered was being on a train.

Yvonne met 43-year-old Tracé Nguyen-Who on the train. He told her he was a chemist from North Vietnam.

Shortly afterwards, Nguyen-Who took a box of chocolates out of his pocket and offered some to her.

She ate three chocolates. The next thing she remembered was beginning consciousness on the hotel bed.

All her clothing was removed and she was paralyzed

Near her on the bed was Nguyen-Who, also naked.

His arms were around her. "Sleep again, darling, sleep again," he said.

So again she dozed off. Later, still half asleep, Yvonne allowed him to dress her and take her downstairs.

In the lobby, she watched him pay the hotel bill to Madame Tarras, owner of the Hotel Terminus in LeFoyet, France.

Turning to Madame Tarras, Yvonne asked, "Where am I? How did I get here?"

Nguyen-Who quickly said that his wife often acted peculiar.

They left the hotel and entered a taxicab.

But Madame Tarras had become suspicious. She followed the pair outside, leaped into the cab and told the driver to take them to the police, which he did.

Yvonne's story was a familiar one to the police.

For months they had been searching for an "Oriental with piercing eyes" who fed beautiful girls drugged chocolates and then made love to them.

Nguyen-Who confessed to authorities that his chocolates contained "a love poison from South East Asia that makes girls do what you want."

Nguyen-Who was held over for trial.

Authorities Say:

HE WENT BACK TO COLLEGE — TO KILL THE CAMPUS QUEEN

By Hugh Bohm

John Treglow, 19, was apparently unhappy and confused.

He flunked out of Platteville State University — and seemed to show no interest in finding a job. He reportedly spent a lot of time drinking in bars.

POLICE SAY IT WAS AFTER DOWNING A FEW BEERS THAT HE DROVE TO HIS FORMER UNIVERSITY — AND KILLED THE CAMPUS QUEEN.

Last December 8, Treglow appeared at the door of the college snack bar, where Kathleen Moan, 26, was sitting with friends.

Treglow had once dated the beautiful girl — who was now about to become engaged to another man.

Witnesses say: "He walked up to her and shot her."

Kathleen slumped over and fell to the floor.

"I just stood there," said one witness.

"He (Treglow) was holding the gun on us — then he gave us a dirty look and just walked out."

Treglow ran to his car and drove off — as one of the students phoned the Lancaster, Wis. police.

The alleged killer drove recklessly, and apparently knocked over several guard rails along the way.

"We chased him about five blocks," said Police Chief Gillen.

"He was driving poorly, skidding back and forth across the road."

Treglow was finally stopped when he pulled into a driveway, where a police car blocked him off.

"He sort of slumped over on the seat," said Gillen.

"We approached the car with drawn guns and ordered him out."

"As he got out and started to put his hands on the top of the car, he collapsed and we had to hold him up."

Treglow offered no resistance, and when he arrived at the jail he reportedly asked:

"How is the other party?"

After he was told that Kathleen was dead, Treglow reportedly slumped over and buried his head in his hands.

Police quoted him as saying "Oh my God, why did I do it?"

He allegedly told the authorities that he remembered firing three shots — and "everything else was a blank."

Last December 18, at his arraignment, Treglow pleaded innocent to first degree murder — by reason of insanity.

He is presently awaiting trial.

KATHLEEN MOAN — as campus queen.

JOHN TREGLOW had dated the girl he allegedly shot.

SHE DIDN'T WANT TO LOSE HER FRIENDS — SO SHE BURNED HERSELF ALIVE

Dorothy Hartmann, 33, was happy living with truck driver James Horn and his mother.

SHE WAS SO MISERABLE WHEN THEY DECIDED TO LEAVE HER — SHE BURNED HERSELF ALIVE. (Police learned the lease on the apartment they lived in would soon expire, and Horn and his mother planned to take a new place alone.)

When Dorothy learned that she would soon be by herself, she started talking about suicide to her friends.

She talked most about death by fire.

Last December 23, shortly after Jim Horn left for work, his 78-year-old mother, Mrs. Mary Savage, smelled smoke.

She ran into Dorothy's bedroom and saw her standing by the bed — surrounded by smoke.

"Come out, come out," the old woman screamed.

But Dorothy wouldn't move. Then, according to Mrs. Savage, the whole room seemed to burst into flame.

Terrified, the old woman rushed out of the house shouting for help.

Neighbors heard her and called the fire department. After they put out the fire, the firemen found Dorothy's burned corpse near the bed.

The Hialeah, Fla., police were immediately informed.

Officers found an empty gasoline can by the bedroom door. Detective Ted Semanick said it looked as though Dorothy had poured gasoline over her bed and then set it on fire.

SHE'S PROUD TO WEAR THE UNIFORM

Alfian Silver introduced new barmaid uniforms into his establishment — and half-a-dozen girls walked off the job. But not Andrea Silver. "I don't know why the other girls got so furious," said Andrea.

"There's nothing improper about these costumes."

"But you can't convince them of that."

"One girl told me the leopard-skin uniform would make her look like an Oriental prostitute."

"Another complained because she might get 'chilly' in the wintertime."

"I think they're both full of beats. The costumes are not suggestive at all. And they certainly are warm enough."

Andrea's been working at Silver's Perth, Australia, bar for two years. She thinks the furor, stated on January 5, will soon pass.

"I like my job, and wouldn't quit for anything," she said. "Of course, I had to wear something that might cause the place to be raided."

"But this uniform" I'd trust my maiden aunt in it.

"I must admit that some of the men customers have gotten a little freer since I've started wearing it."

"But that's okay. Tips have gone up, too."

100 HOURS OF WORK MELTED IN A FRYING PAN

Butcher Pierre Delcroix shaved more than 100 hours carving a replica of a famous theater from a chunk of pork fat.

The French meat carver and restaurant owner was so proud of his work that he displayed it in his cafe window — and a local television station asked him to exhibit it on a January 5 program.

BUT ON THE DAY OF THE TV SHOW, ONE OF TELE-

VISION'S COOKS ACCIDENTALLY THREW THE SCULPTURE INTO A FRYING PAN AND MELTED IT DOWN.

"I didn't see the front," the cook later explained. "I only saw it from the back, and some

I needed some fat."

But all is not lost.

Delcroix is now at work on another theater, the television station said it will wait; and the cook swears he will look before melting the next time.

SHE BUYS $133 MILLION WORTH OF BOOZE — BUT DOESN'T DRINK

Burdie Fryman spends $133 million a year for liquor. BUT SHE DOESN'T TOUCH

A DROP OF THE STUFF — SHE SHEPHERDS KODIA.

Officially, Burdie is an assistant to the Michigan Liquor Control Commission Director John C. Bennet.

The state purchases and distributes liquor through its own system of stores.

Last year the state distributed 4,441,477 cases of booze — and Burdie ordered all of them from the liquor makers.

That's enough alcohol to fill a lake six feet deep, 100 feet wide, and a mile long.

"Imagine anyone drinking that much," Burdie said.

"Just think of all those hangovers."

During the Christmas-New Year holiday season, Burdie's records show, Michigan gin-fles drank 1,145,739 cases of booze.

Burdie knows the state's drinking habits so well that at the end of 1983 there were only 9,800 cases left in state warehouses.

She's been buying booze for the entire state for a dozen years now.

And has never taken a single drink from that vast lake of liquor.

SHE "MOONLIGHTS" AS A STRIPPER

I don't want people to get the wrong impression," she said during lunch at a fashionable Milan, Italy, restaurant.

"I do exercise during my nights because it's the only way I'll ever get frustrated for my real job — movies."

"If producers see me only on the television show — they won't see other talents that have."

"He might say to himself, 'That girl can do anything, and ask me to be in his next movie.'"

Sweet old grandmothers and proper maiden aunts like to watch Paula Penn on television.

As an assistant to one of Italy's most popular M.C.'s, Paula's video movie in that city is a sweet, innocent young girl.

She dresses primly. She speaks quietly. She's very

BUT WHAT MOST OF HER TV FANS DON'T KNOW IS — AFTER HER SHOW GOES OFF THE AIR, PAULA "MOONLIGHTS" AT ANOTHER JOB SHE'S A TORRID STRIP-TEASE ARTIST.

As she told this STAN CHRONICLE reporter "I'm the happiest girl alive — because my husband's the world's greatest lover."

Her Lawyers Said:

VICTIM KNEW SHE WAS GOING TO BE KILLED—BUT NO ONE COULD HELP HER

By Bob Brenan

Johnnie Williams reportedly told her lawyers that her former husband was going to kill her.

But when the lawyers asked the Miami, Fla. police for protection...

THE COPS REFUSED, SAYING THERE WAS NOTHING THEY COULD DO—AND LYNN WILLIAMS WAS LEFT FREE TO KEEP HIS ALLEGED PROMISE.

Johnnie, an attractive 27-year-old check-in clerk for a rent-a-car agency, said Williams for divorce last year on grounds of extreme cruelty.

Circuit Judge J. Fritz Gordon granted an emergency injunction against Williams last December because he had threatened Johnnie, according to one of her lawyers.

"She kept telling me: 'This man is going to kill me,'" said Johnnie's other attorney, Phil Mandina.

"In fact, her husband was picked up for assault and carrying a concealed weapon. He bonded himself out for $2,500."

"He threatened to kill her several times.

"I asked a police lieutenant if there wasn't something they could do. Just wait until he killed her?"

"He said he couldn't do a thing. A judge had ordered him (Williams) to stay away from her."

But Williams allegedly didn't stay away from dark-haired Johnnie.

Late in the afternoon on December 24, Johnnie finished her work at a Miami International Airport booth, and—walked across the parking lot to the car-rental office.

Police say Williams followed her into the office, a revolver in his right hand.

"Get out of here," Williams allegedly barked at Paul D'Amico, Johnnie's boss. D'Amico did.

Johnnie was standing with her back to the door. She turned around.

"I told you," Williams reportedly said. AS HE SHOT HER FOUR TIMES, KILLING HER.

Cops say Williams then escaped in one of the agency's convertibles.

Police later found two notes, one of which, they claim, indicated Williams had intended to kill his ex-wife and then himself.

But the 35-year-old former bus driver was captured December 31 when he was recognized on a Miami street by a motor cycle officer.

Williams was charged with first-degree murder the same day. He is now awaiting trial.

"She (Johnnie) didn't want a thing from him, no alimony, nothing," lawyer Mandina said.

"She didn't even ask him to pay the legal fees.

"She just wanted to get away. She was a lovely girl."

Life May Soon Be Different:

STRANGE GIMMICKS WILL KEEP YOUR HEAD WARM WHILE YOU LOOK AT PEOPLE BEHIND YOU

COZY HELMET makes winter more enjoyable but causes problems

By Peter Jorgenson

Everyday living may be a little different soon as a result of an invention about to be released in the U.S.

THEY ARE SPECTACLES THAT LET YOU SEE BEHIND YOU.

"They're really glasses fitted with rear-view mirrors," said the designer at the Brussels, Belgium, Inventor's Exhibition last week.

"A person can shoot a pistol behind him, see traffic moving up from the rear when he's a pedestrian — or wear them as a safety precaution on a dark night in a dangerous neighborhood."

The other invention getting attention at the same exhibition is a weird-looking helmet designed to ease winter living.

"It's made of double plastic walls, a battery — operating air fan and a tiny alcohol burner," said the exhibitors.

"The fan sucks in the cold outside air in wintery weather, the burner heats it and circulates warmth around the wearer's head."

"It's the answer for all those people who have breathing trouble or catch cold when the temperature drops near zero."

It works well — but the inventor said he was having two problems with the gimmick.

"First, when it snows or sleets, it's difficult to see out," he said.

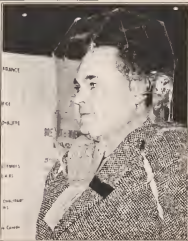

"We'll lick that with a new development — we're going to fit a special set of windshield wipers."

SEAR VISION GLASSES let wearers' see behind them

"The second is more of a problem — and until people get used to seeing the helmets there's little we can do about it."

"When customers start wearing them, they have to put up with strange looks from other people in the street."

"The helmets make them look like men from Mars."

Wipes Out Family Of Girl Who Told Him:

"YOU'RE NOT MAN ENOUGH FOR ME"

From KARL HINKLEMAN, W. Germany

Hans-Georg Mesek's girl friend wanted to end their romance.

She told Hans he wasn't man enough for her — and he flew into a rage and left her house.

But he returned a few days later, AND SAVAGELY KILLED THE GIRL'S MOTHER, FATHER AND BROTHER WITH AN AX.

Hans, 18, was visiting Adelheid Heuler, 16, last January 3, in her home in Bad Segeberg, Germany.

"Everything between us is over," she told Hans.

"You're just a little boy."

Hans was furious.

"Till now you if I am a man or not," he screamed at Adelheid as he left.

Hans returned to the house the following week. Adelheid was away at work.

Her father and mother greeted him and asked him to come in.

Without a warning, Hans raised an ax and smashed the father's head in.

He died instantly.

Adelheid's mother began to scream and Hans attacked her with the ax.

She was also slain.

Then Hans reportedly turned his ax on Adelheid's brother — killing him on the spot.

He dragged the father's body to the basement, then hid the bodies of the mother and brother in a shed in the garden.

His hand had been cut during his rampage. He bandaged it.

Then he cleaned up and waited for Adelheid.

When she saw his hand, she asked what happened.

"I cut it at work," he told her.

"It's not serious."

The two watched television for a while then Hans again told Adelheid he loved her.

"I told you we were finished," she said.

He repeated that he loved her and she laughed.

Hans jumped to his feet in anger and snarled:

"You won't be laughing much longer."

Then he left.

Later, Adelheid began to worry because her parents and brother weren't home.

She searched the house, then went to the basement.

She screamed when she saw the body of her father in a pool of blood.

Her screams brought neighbors running and they discovered the other two bodies in the shed.

Within hours police arrested Hans.

At first he denied the slayings, but then began to change his story.

"She said I wasn't a man," he told police.

"Maybe she'll think different now."

Police accused Hans of the killings and he is now waiting trial.

A NEW KIND OF TEENAGE CLUB — BEAT UP 10 VICTIMS AND YOU'RE IN

Police in Berkeley, Calif., are upset about a new kind of teenage club . . .

A CLUB FOR SADISTS — WHICH GIVES 10 "POINTS" TO HOPEFUL NEW MEMBERS FOR EACH VICTIM THEY BEAT UP.

Every assault must be made without provocation and with a club member watching.

To be a full member, a candidate must earn 100 points

(He's got to beat up ten innocent people.)

The club came to light when cops arrested a 16-year-old Berkeley High School boy last November 25 in connection with noon-hour beatings of other high school students.

The club has about 15 members, the boy told police.

The youth, who is 6' 4" tall and weighs 185 pounds, added that he needed 50 points more — just two more victims — to become a full-fledged sadist.

What Are The Secrets Of A Man's Attractiveness To Women?

What is it about some men that makes women adore them and pursue them passionately? The answers are not simple or obvious. They are not to be found in a man's appearance, cultivation or social life. I am as large a young man, with my concerns with these mysterious matters that have long and shrouded. Much of what I say will probably seem strange to you and even incredible. But if you really do not prove of the greater value to you than you will find it hard possible, your money will be refunded and no questions asked. HE MAILS OUT HIS OWN BLOOD—AS A PUBLICITY STUNT

By Linda Woodward

James Tye gives away his own blood as a publicity stunt.

So far, he has had two and a half pints of the vital fluid drawn from his veins, put into tiny bottles and sent out to hundreds of people.

"I'M NOT AS NUTTY AS I LOOK," TYE SAID.

"My idea is to draw attention to preventing factory accidents."

"You have no idea how bloody industrial accidents can be, and how many of them there are."

"GALLONS OF BLOOD ARE SHED EVERY DAY BY FACTORY WORKERS WHO GET HURT IN THEIR WORK. If they lose gallons, surely I can spare a pint or two."

"The number of factory accidents is rising, and we must do something about it."

Tye runs a London, England, Accident Prevention Company. He arranges lectures on the subject of factory safety and puts out booklets and posters.

Sometimes the booklets he mails are accompanied by his own blood.

JAMES TYE'S DOCTOR taps his vein for blood.

HIS SECRETARY, Durya Tolmay, helps Tye with the blood-baiting.

He recently sent 628 tiny bottles of it to members of the English Parliament to call attention to pending safety laws.

As often as his doctor gives him permission, Tye says he'll have more pints of blood drawn from his veins, bottled and sent to influential people.

"I think it will do more good than Coca-Cola," he said.

FAITH HEALER TREATED WOMEN BY STROKING THEIR NUDE BODIES WITH HIS "MAGNETIC HANDS"

By Peter Jorgensen

Heinz Hacklander, 45, was a faith healer.

And all his patients were rich, beautiful women.

HE TREATED THEIR ACHES, PAINS AND SEXUAL FRIGIDITY BY STROKING THEIR NAKED BODIES WITH

HIS "MAGNETIC HANDS."

Hacklander claimed that his hands possessed unusual powers—and most of his patients believed him.

One woman described the faith healer's technique:

"When I first went to his office—he made my tides off all my clothes," she said.

"I told him I didn't want to —but he said it was necessary if I wanted the magnetic power from his hands to be transferred to my body.

"He said clothes got in the way."

"Then he started moving his fingers all over my body."

"I could feel the magnetism—but it made me nervous."

"I asked him to stop but he refused."

"Hacklander said that if the treatment were interrupted, I would go insane."

After her treatment, she called the police and accused Hacklander of making obscene advances.

He was arrested last December 4—and a court of Bremen, Germany, found him guilty and sentenced him to three months in jail.

Cops Say: WIDOW ONLY WANTED TO SCARE OFF HER 66-YEAR-OLD SUITOR— BUT SHOT HIM TO DEATH INSTEAD

By Elliot Contor

Barbara Damain, 64, said she'd been bothered by electrician Harry Gladd, 66, for two years—ever since her husband died.

And the last time Gladd visited her, Barbara became especially irritated.

So she pulled a .38 caliber revolver out of a drawer. "I WANTED TO SCARE HIM ONCE AND FOR ALL," SHE ALLEGEDLY TOLD POLICE LATER. "BUT WHEN I PICKED UP THE PISTOL, MY STOMACH KNOTTED UP AND I SHOT HIM."

Last November 19, when Gladd called on the widow, he asked her if she'd be willing to live on his pension.

Barbara said she knew Gladd was already married and had children—as his proposition infuriated her, and she demanded that he leave her alone.

But the persistent electrician evidently refused to accept her answer.

They continued arguing, and Barbara presumably pulled the gun.

After Barbara reportedly shot him the first time, Gladd didn't die.

"He rushed at me and we wrestled over the gun—and I shot him again," she allegedly said.

Then Barbara called the police.

When Officer Walter Deake arrived at her apartment, she took him to a dinette where he found Gladd lying wounded on the floor.

According to Drake, Gladd shot him...

And the widow didn't deny it. "Yes I did it," she reportedly said. "I was tired of him interfering with my life."

Gladd was rushed to a Seattle, Wash., hospital, where he underwent surgery. He died a few hours later.

Barbara was arrested, and BARBARA DAMAIN allegedly killed her 66-year-old suitor because he was such a nuisance.

she is presently awaiting trial for first degree murder.

Experiment Proves... TEENAGE JURIES WOULD BE TOUGH ON TRAFFIC VIOLATORS

By Linda Woodward

"Traffic violators can be grateful for one thing," said a Gary, Ind., policeman.

"If they're caught, at least they won't be judged by a jury of teenagers."

"We tried an experiment in our city—letting the kids sit on traffic juries."

"And let me tell you this... 'THOSE TEENAGERS ARE A HECK OF A LOT TOUGHER ON VIOLATORS THAN ADULTS ARE.'"

The experiment was instituted by Gary City Judge Richard S. Kaplan last fall.

Kaplan decided that a "junior jury" program would be helpful to high school students—and education officials agreed.

So teenagers were allowed to take an active part in judging juvenile traffic violators in court.

Two of the junior juries were Felicia Rodriguez and Gerald Smith.

The first case they heard involved a 16-year-old girl named Debra Carter.

Debra was charged with going through a red light, driving without a license and leaving the scene of an accident.

When Judge Kaplan asked junior juror Felicia what she thought about the case, she replied:

"This is horrible."

"I would give her the maximum penalty."

In another case, a teenager left the scene of an accident after his car had crashed into another vehicle.

And when the judge asked junior juror Smith his opinion about that, the teenager said:

"This is inhuman."

"I would definitely punish him."

According to Judge Kaplan, the junior juries were tough in every decision they made.

Fortunately for the violators, Kaplan only used the teen juries as a guide—and did not usually follow their harsh advice.

HE GETS SUITCASE FROM EX-WIFE — FINDS NEWBORN BABY IN IT

"Our marriage was a great mistake," he told friends. "We didn't get along from the start."

When Yvette took off, she took some of Raoul's possessions.

The 38-year-old hairdresser wrote and asked her to return them.

Six months later he hired a lawyer to get his things from Yvette, 38.

"I want everything that belongs to me," he told his ex-wife in a letter.

A few days later Raoul received a suitcase at his Paris, France apartment with a few of his belongings.

HE ALSO FOUND A NEWBORN BABY IN THE SUITCASE.

Pinned to the baby's shirt was a note that read: "IT'S ALL YOURS — LOVE — YVETTE."

The baby was alive and crying.

TEENAGE JURY is harsh on juvenile traffic violators.

ALL TABLOID NEWSPAPERS ARE NOT ALIKE And The NATIONAL STAR CHRONICLE Proves It!

The STAR CHRONICLE Gets The Story First

How many times have you read an article in the STAR CHRONICLE — then weeks (or even months) later seen that same story pop up in some other national tabloid?

It happens often. Very often.

Almost every week, we spot stories elsewhere that we've run a long time ago.

The STAR CHRONICLE publishes fresh, current stories — before you've seen them anywhere else.

There's a reason for this.

We take very special care to track down all the exciting and unusual news as quickly as possible. The STAR CHRONICLE has a worldwide network of correspondents who are trained to get the facts fast — and get them right.

We refuse to run the kind of warmed-over lunk that others do.

The STAR CHRONICLE Tells The Story Best

This newspaper is the clearest, most easy-to-read tabloid ever published.

The STAR CHRONICLE avoids fancy words and long-winded stuff.

We tell a story straight and to the point.

We know our readers want excitement — not boredom. So we go right to the heart of the story — making sure that all the important facts are in it.

No other paper is more lively than the STAR CHRONICLE.

What's more, the STAR CHRONICLE is truly fearless. The only question we ask before running an article is: Will our readers be interested by this? We're not afraid of printing the truth — and letting the chips fall where they may.

If you see it here, you can be sure it's so. Names, dates and places are always included in our stories.

We comb the world to find the most fascinating human beings to tell you about — whether they're movie stars or murderers, beautiful girls or bank robbers, children or champagne owners.

And we're loaded with photos — not phony, hooked-up pictures — but genuine, untouched shots of the people we're writing about.

We repeat — if you see it here, you can be sure it's so.

The STAR CHRONICLE Prints True Stories About Real People

PERSON TO PERSON is the most complete, honest personal advertising page in America. We do not make these ads up. Every one of them has been submitted by a real person — just like yourself.

AROUND THE WORLD — our hard-hitting Broadway-Hollywood gossip page — often scoops even the Winchells, the Kilgalleys and other famous columnists. Richard Matton writes exclusively for the STAR CHRONICLE. His newsy items keep you posted on what's really happening in the worlds of showbizness, the arts and politics.

MENTOR's amazing predictions of the future will thrill you and chill you. We don't know how he does it (a trade secret, he says), but his star-gazing is frighteningly accurate. And he appears only in the STAR CHRONICLE.

MISSING PERSONS EXCHANGE is an exclusive STAR CHRONICLE idea. There's nothing like it anywhere in America. For people who write in, there's the hope of finding missing loved ones. For those who simply read the letters, there's the fascination of true-life drama — and the possibility of helping to reunite long lost friends and relatives.

TERRY'S TIPS AND HORSES TO WATCH are filled with winners, week after week. See for yourself. Terry Johnson is one of the best informed handicappers anywhere. ★ Screen Beauty Says: ★
★ From GIACOMO SANTINI, Rome ★

"When I look into my mirror, I often feel I'm looking at a fraud," said streaming Sylvia Koscina.

"Men say I'm beautiful. Perhaps I am. But something has always kept me from believing I'm as gorgeous as they say."

"I'M THE VICTIM OF A TERRIBLE INFERIORITY COMPLEX."

When we visited the swank apartment of the 22-year-old actress in a fashionable Rome hotel, she was stretched out comfortably on a large sofa.

"I should be a very happy person, but this feeling of inferiority has haunted me since I was a little girl," she said.

"I was no teenage beauty. I had buck teeth. The boys in our village on the outskirts of Naples used to call me Skanky. At church parties and dances, none of the local fellows ever chose me for a partner."

"If I went to a dance with my parents, I sat in a corner all night and watched the others have a good time."

"I was a wallflower—a teenage ugly duckling."

"PERHAPS THAT'S WHY I'M SO UNSURE OF MYSELF—WHY IT'S SO HARD TO CONVINCE MYSELF THAT I'M REALLY BEAUTIFUL."

"I've been told that millions of women in the world would give anything to have my physical proportions. 34-24-34."

"But just look at my legs. They're not long enough to be really sexy.

"My nose is too small; my neck is too short; and my legs are too thin."

"I receive fan mail from men in all parts of the world telling me that I'm sexy, desirous and lovely."

"I'm not so sure if I believe all they tell me, but I love to hear it. What girl wouldn't?"

"WHENEVER I GET THAT OLD FEELING OF INFERIORITY, I GIVE MYSELF A LIFT BY READING MY FAN MAIL."

"AND THE CONTRACT FOR MY NEXT FILM—SYLVIA, THE INFERIOR, IS PRESENTLY EARNING A COOL HALF-MILLION DOLLARS A YEAR."

SYLVIA KOSCINA says she was once a wallflower.

Hubby Thinks Wife Is Dead And Kills Himself
But She's Still Alive

When Wilhelm Andressen saw his ailing wife, Hedwig, on the floor, he apparently thought she was dead.

Overcome with grief, Wilhelm hanged himself.

BUT HEDWIG WASN'T DEAD.

She lay on the floor alive for two days and nights unable to reach the door—BECAUSE HER HUSBAND'S CORPSE BLOCKED THE WAY.

Hedwig, 71, had been sick for many weeks and was confined to her bed.

Her 75-year-old husband, Wilhelm, did his best to nurse her and take care of her needs.

But last December 2, the old woman got out of bed alone at night to go to the bathroom.

She fell down unconscious before reaching it.

Wilhelm woke up some time later to find Hedwig sprawled on the floor.

She was probably breathing so lightly that Wilhelm could detect no sign of life. Her illness, doctors said, could have caused this appearance.

Wilhelm got a rope and hanged himself.

Later, Hedwig regained consciousness.

She was horrified to see her husband's corpse swinging near the door.

Hedwig was too weak to call out for help or push Wilhelm's corpse aside to reach the door.

All she could do was lay helplessly, staring at her dead husband.

It was two days before a relative paid a visit to the Andressens and found Hedwig barely alive.

Rushed to a hospital in West Berlin, Germany, Hedwig was saved by emergency treatment.

"But now that my husband is dead, I no longer want to live," she said.

HE WORRIED HIMSELF BALD—THEN GREW ANOTHER HEAD OF HAIR

By Sam Lee

Arend De Vries, 46, had a lot on his mind.

His son was dangerously ill, and his wife was expecting another baby.

SO DE VRIES WORRIED HIMSELF BALD—

AREND DE VRIES worried away his hair.

BUT THEN GREW ANOTHER HEAD OF HAIR.

When we interviewed De Vries last January 26 at his home in Melbourne, Australia, he kept patting his head graciously.

"When my hair started to fall out, it fell out all at once," he said. "That was four years ago."

"Doctors told me my condition was caused by worry."

Within three weeks, my eyebrows went, my beard disappeared and I was smooth as silk everywhere.

"It was horrible—I felt like a freak."

"Meanwhile, my son recovered and my wife had baby boy without any trouble—so my mind was set at rest."

"But I was still miserably hairless."

"I couldn't stand the sun on my head during the day—or the cold air at night."

"And I looked so hideous. I refused to go anywhere."

"The doctors gave me medicine and rubbed lotions on my skull—but nothing did any good."

"Finally I went to Fremantle Hospital and underwent a two-month treatment. They gave me injections of a 'testosterone hormone'."

"And shortly afterward, a tiny white whisker sprouted on my head."

"Within a month, I had as much hair as my baby son—but it was snow white."

"So the doctor changed the treatment slightly—and my hair turned brown."

"Three months later, I was making regular visits to the barber."

"And now I even have hair on my chest."

"The nightmare is completely over."

He smiled and pointed to a picture of his healthy looking wife and sons.

"Everything is back to normal," said De Vries.

"Of course, I did not have as much hair as I did 25 years ago."

"But who does?"
